RISING SON.

Fairfax, Society Reporetr. Walker, Agent, Lexington, Mo.

mber pleaselittle bits we collect here an thar e bles us to run from year to year."

OCALS.

Ella Alexander is on the sick

Daisy Day is visiting in Law-

ss Gussie Price has gone to Chi-

Mrs. Fred Manuels left for Denver

Miss Lizzie Williams spent Sunday

Topeka, Kas. H. Patton wants a good barber at 6 Wyandotte street.

H. A. Abernathy, of 613 West Elevath street, is very sick. Miss Molly Raymond, of this city, pent Sunday in Topeka, Kas.

rl August 3.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Dean at home friends at 1627 Park avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Vincent, 1406 East lixteenth, was blessed with a 12-pound

After several months illness the son Lorenzo Salisbury, of 1824 Madison enue, lost his eyesight.

Miss Minnie Morton, of Leavenworth as., has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Sand, of 1216 Baltimore.

Miss Jennie Watts Montgomery, of icago, is visiting her mother and ter on Highland avenue.

The preliminary hearing of the case the State vs. J. B. Gibbs, charged th killing Ed Moore on August 8, be heard before Justice Hicks ugust 19.

Mrs. K. Cummings, 610 East Twelfth r laborers or anyone wishing early eals. Call and get rates.

The Sons and Daughters of Jerusa-Currie's park on the 4th instant. They old 5,000 tickets at the gate.

Messrs, George Anderson and James Buffet, 801 East Twelfth street. Choice wines, liquors, cigars and pool hall. Give them a call.

Call up the Arnold Cafe, Telephone 2874 Walnut, for special parties and night lunches, special meals and short orders. Call and see me. Mrs M. Arnold, successor to Arnold & Robison, 1221 Baltimore, City.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of one Mr. Seymour of St. Joseph, Mo., will please communicate with Mrs. M. J. Seymour of 705 S. Sixteenth St., St. Joseph. She is anxious to know what has happened to him.

Mrs. Minnie E. Robinson and Mrs. Tillie Rummons, sisters of Edward S. Lewis, one of our letter carriers, are visiting Miss Virginia St. Clair at Atchison, Kas. They expect to visit relatives at St. Joseph, Weston and Platte City, their former home, before returning home.

Mrs. R. M. Frazier left Kansas City Sunday on a visit to the South. She will go to Birmingham, Ala., and will be the guest of her sister, Mrs. Susie Robinson. She will leave Birmingham GOOD AGENTS WANTED in company with her aunt, Mrs. Kate Crenshaw on a business trip to Montgomery, Ala., to fall heir to her father's estate. While there she will be the guest of Rev. and Mrs. Stokes. She will also be the guest of Miss Handie Morton, one of the oldest teachers in Montgomery.

A KANSAS CITYAN HONORED. The delegates from the Twenty-third | Hair Pomade and terms to agents. Annual Meeting of Grand United Order of Odd Fellows, which convened at Fulton, Mo., August 4th, 5th and 6ta, returned home Saturday and report un Town or City..... harmonious session. They also had the satisfaction of having Edward S. Lewis, one of our efficient letter carriers, elected Grand Master. Also C. Express Office..... L. Wilson of Alaska Lodge No. 3664 elected Grand Director, and Mrs. Lucy Page of Henrietta Household No. 160 was elected Right Most Noble Governor of the District Grand Household.

Mr. B. Allen Morris was on the sick list the week of the9th, inst, but is greatly improved. He was visited by several young ladies and gents.

The United Sons of Allen will entertain at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Brice, 110 East Eleventh street, the first Wednesday in September. A splendid program wil be rendered by some of Kansas City's best talent. Mr. B. Allen Morris will entertain.

C. FRAZIER, Prest.

Madame Lucas, the renowned prima donna, better known as the "Inimitable Queen of Song," in company with Prof. R. J. Jackson, will appear at the St. John. A. M. E. church, 941 Bell street, on August 19th. Do not fail to hear her. Admission 15c. Children

I need young women between the ages of 20 and 38 to take the nurse training in Douglass Hospital and Training School for Nurses, located at 312 Washington avenue, Kansas City, Kansas. For full particulars, apply to L. Ashton Woods, Superintendent.

Mr. Henry Norman, who has returned to Texas, entertained a number of his young friends last Tuesday evening in honor of Mr. Julius Johnson, who was visiting him at the residence of Misses Ida and Bessie Washington. Games and dancing were the essential amusements of the evening.

Mrs. Pearl Riley, Sadle McWaters, Mamie Barker and Ednæ Jordan assisted in receiving.

There is much whispering among those of the legal profession as to who will be Judge Holt's successor as judge of the court of common pleas. Governor Bailey has the appointing power by virtue of a decision of the supreme court of Kansas. Judge Fisher's time also expires and his successor will be appointed about the same time. Both factions are busy as bees pushing the claims of their candidates. Who will be the lucky man time alone will tell.

NOTICE AND REMEMBER

That on Thursday evening, September 10, the Waiters have decided to give their grand ball at Turner's Hall, corner Twelfth and Oak streets, Kansas City, Mo. Music will be furnished by Prof. John D. West's Orchestra, and supper will be served by Mother Arnold .- A. L. Hopkins, Pres.; W. H. Nolen, Secy.; D. A. Willis, Treas.; Sanford Blake, Floor Manager.

USED IN 1858.

Way back in the year 1858 the Original Ozonized Ox Marrow was used by colored people in the North reet has first class rooms and board and is now used all over the country from Maine to Texas and Oregon to Florida. The continued use or the preparation for such a long period of time is a positive proof that it gives perfect satisfaction to all. It em had the picnic of the season at makes kinky or curly hair straight. soft and beautiful. Stops falling hair, cures dandruff and makes the hair less. Only 50 cents a bottle. Get it Johnson have opened the Monogram from your dealer or send us 50 cents and we will ship you a bottle express Address Ozonized Ox Marrow paid. Co., 76 Wabash ave., Chicago, Ill.

> The Vendome Dancing Academy, 1734 Grand avenue, Kansas City, Mo. The only first class dancing academy in the city. Equipped with electric fans and soda fountain. Ice cream soua and all soft drinks are served. John D. West's orchestra furnishes music. Dancing every Monday and Thursday evenings. Admission 15c.

D. A. WILLIS, Manager.

THE GREAT SOUHERN HAIR POMADE.

THE GREAT HAIR GROWER AND STRAIGHTENER

PRICE 25c.

Fill out this blank and send it with $1.00 and you will receive by express $2.00 worth of the Pomade and terms to agents.

F. J. NOTT, PARIS, MO. Enclosud pleased P. O Money Order for $1.00, for which send meas per your offer, $2.00 worth of the Great Southern State.....

Date of this order.....

SEND ALS ORDERS TO

F. J. NOTT, Box 81, Paris, Mo.

A Rich Girl's Whim.

BY FRANK H. SWEET.

(Copyright, 1963, by Daily Story Pub. Co.) There had been an abundance of space on the through train from New York, so when after two days' stop at St. Augustine, Mabel Waring continued her journey toward Palm Beach she neglected her customary precaution of securing a seat in advance.

So with the folds of her dainty traveling skirt held gingerly between her gloved fingers, Mabel Waring entered one of the common cars and moved down the rows of passengers until, near the far end, a girl made room for her.

The man and woman in the seat opposite, and the woman ahead, might be like herself, without a choice in the matter. And that nice old man with the white hair, and the tall young dropped her gaze quickly and turned with heightened color to the girl at her side, who all this time had been watching and waiting with eager, wistful recognition in her eyes.

"Ah, Miss Waring." she whispered, "I saw you on the platform, and was hoping I might get a chance to thank you for that delightful trip last summer. I haven't been able to see you

"Why, yes, to be sure. How stupid of me," and in Mabel's expressive face was now a quick interest which atoned for her former lack of recognition. "I always liked your counter, for you seemed so interested in what I bought, and so anxious not to mislead."

'Yes," and the girl's eyes sparkled at being so well remembered, "she married a Florida man and went to West Palm Beach. He keeps a store. I am going there now. You see I'm not strong enough for the confinement of store work, so Bessie wrote for me to come and try to get the public school. One of her husband's customers is the trustee, and they seem to think I will have a good chance. No one has applied for the position yet."

"That will be nice," Mabel declared, "so much better than store work, I think."

One morning, a few days after reaching Palm Beach, Mabel took out her purse to tip a waiter, and was surprised to find how small an amount of money there was left. It was odd how money slipped away in a place like this. She must have another draft cashed at once. Her drafts were made in amounts of one hundred dollars each, for convenience; and were kept in a small leather case among her stationery. She opened the trunk and reached in confidently; then, as her hand did not come in contact with the case, raised the trunk-lid higher and made a more careful search. But the case did not reveal itself; and from the stationery she began a hurried examination of the entire contents of the trunk, and then went to another trunk, and another, and repeated the process. But it was no use, and at last she rose and went to a window which overlooked the sea, perplexed and annoyed. What had become of the drafts? She had cashed one at St. Augustine, she remembered, and then-why, yes, certainly, she had gone directly to her room from the office. Of course she had returned the case to its usual place. Had it been stolen? She made thought. No, she would not believe that. It was only her carelessness. But it was gone; that was the main point. Now what was she to do? Her uncle had started for Europe, and she would not even know his address for another two weeks. It would be a month or more before the drafts could be replaced. Of course she could go to the hotel manager and explain the situation to him; but that would be humiliating, and, besides, there were the little every-day expenses of boats and curiosity stores and magazine counters. She did not even have the money for them. Half an hour later, as she was walking thoughtfully down the avenue, she almost ran into the arms of a young girl who was hurrying from the opposite direction.

She began a hurried examination of the entire contents of the trunk

"Oh, I beg your pardon, Miss Waring," apologized the new-comer, laughing, "I was thinking."

"So was I," Mabel answered. Then, "Why, Lucy, how bright you look! That school has become an assured fact. I suppose?"

"No, indeed," with a wry grimace, "the trustee told me I wasn't quite competent. Lucky for me, though, for the hotel manager has offered me a position at five dollars a month more than I would receive as school teach-

"Has any one else been engaged?" she asked.

"For the school? No, not yet," looking at Ler curlously. "Do you know of any one? The trustee said he was puzzled who to get."

"Do you think I would suit?" Lucy stared, pursing her lips as though to whistle; then her lips straightened and quivered in a vain attempt to keep from laughing.

"Yes, I think you would," she answered at length, controlling her voice with a visible effort.

"Excuse me," Mabel interrupted hurriedly; "I want to see about the position before there are other applicants. Good-bye."

When Mabel returned to the hotel, a few hours later, she met Lucy in one of the halls, a dusting brush in her hand and a tiny white service-cap resting demurely upon her brown curls.

'Did you get the position, Miss Waring?" she asked, striving to keep her face straight.

"Yes." Mabel answered, "and thank you very much for giving me the information, Lucy. I commence work Monday."

Week after week went by, and Mabel still remained at the hotel, going across to her school every morning and returning at night. There could be but one conclusion. It was a rich girl's freak. Nothing else would explain a primary school-teacher receiving thirty dollars a month stopping at a hotel that charged five dollars a day And this was the conclusion of the others, also, for by this time every one knew of Mabel's occupation. But perhaps the most curious feature of it all was that Mabel never once thought of the inconsistency of a working girl staying at a place like the Breakers. The climax came one day when the clerk handed her a letter from Berlin. It was from her uncle, and after a brief account of his travels, stated that he had arranged for a trip around the world, to be gone a year. It would scarcely be worth while for her to write, as his address would always be uncertain. She would better remain in Florida until spring, and then go to the hotel in New York where they usually stopped, and where he would join her on his return. The letter concluded with the statement that he was glad he had furnished her so abundantly with money. She would have plenty for all possible contingencies.

"Do you think I would suit?"

For the first time she began to go over the details of her situation. It was now the last week in January. She had been here twenty-five days, and that made one hundred and twenty-five dollars due the hotel. wondered how much more than that her salary would be. Quite a deal, she loped, for she was beginning to feel the need of many little things; and besides, she wanted to buy presents for all her school children.

Lucy came to the door in search of truant child, and Mabel motioned or her to approach. "Do you know how much salary the hool pays?" she asked.

Lucy laughed.

"I thought the money part didn't apeal to you?" she answered. was the first thing I inquired about. The primary teacher gets thirty dolars a month," and then she hurried away to the child, who was laughing at er from the hall

Mabel sat rigid for a moment. Then he arose and crossed to the elevator. The manager was in the office, but she tid net glance toward him, nor toward any of the guests. Somehow she elt that she had no right here now.

Once in her room she opened her runks and methodically began to take ut and examine their contents. Her eyes were clear now, and her lips These things must pay her firm. debt and provide for her until she could draw the school salary. She would send them to Jacksonville, or perhaps to New York. It did not matter. They would probably bring but a triffe of their real value at either place; but still they had cost a great leal, and would yield enough to free her from debt. She ought to have known in the first place that a school teacher could not afford living like

At length, from the very bottom of trunk, she took out and unfolded a plain serge. Of all her outfit it was the one article which showed unmistakable signs of wear. But it had been a favorite gown, and was servceable, and for these reasons had been brought along for boating and other rough usage. The last time she had worn it had been on a trip from St. Augustine to Mantanzas. Well, it was just what she needed now, and she was about to place it on the small pile when she felt something in one of the pockets. Mechanically she took it out, and then with a low cry sprang to her feet. It was the leather case containing her drafts.

MISS JOSEPHINE HUGGARD. A lady of splendid musical tident, a member of the Blind Boone Company.

MISS EMMA SMITH.

Whose excellent soprano voice is a Company has been attended with emicharm to the lovers of vocal music. nent success. What pleases the people Miss Smith is a Kansas City girl, well satisfies Manager Lange, so that Miss known and admired by all. The period | Smith's success is quite complete. of her connection with the Blind Boone

HENRY PATTON,

926 Wyandotte street, Kansas City, Mo. barbers and a cashler and is doing a Mr. Patton is a wide-gwake business good business. man and is very popular with the boys

Who conducts a fine barber shop at of Kansas City. He employs taree

WILSON HOUSE EXCELSIOR SPRINGS MO

The &

The above cut represents the Wilson House at Excelsior Springs, Mo. It is located within access to all the springs and its management gives good accommodtions. It is the place to go when you visit the Springs.